Dear Parents,

As we head into the summer months, it is hard to believe another school year is complete. We send off our graduates from the Class of 2010 to the next stage in their lives and look forward to welcoming the incoming Class of 2014 as they begin their journey here at Saint Viator.

Our students achieved great success in the classroom and through their co-curricular activities. Our annual awards ceremonies gave us an opportunity to highlight their achievements in the classroom. For the first time in Saint Viator's history, the math team qualified to go to the state contest held at the University of Illinois on May 1; eight students participated. Joseph Park '12 took 5th in the geometry competition; he joined with Jong Kim '11 to take 10th in the 2-person team competition. French students in levels 1, 2 and 3 participated in the 75th annual National French Contest. Students were evaluated for their written, oral and listening comprehension skills. Three students scored in the top 15th percentile for the Northern Illinois/Chicago Chapter and five other students scored in the top 20th percentile. A complete list of all the awards our students received is highlighted on pages 4 and 5 of this newsletter.

Once again, our co-curricular programs proved to be outstanding. The Viator Voice newspaper received a first place designation from the American Scholastic Press Association, one of only six student newspapers from parochial schools with an enrollment between 1,000 and 1,700 to receive this distinction. The Lions continued the outstanding athletic tradition at Saint Viator, with several teams reaching new ground. State championships were won by our boys' golf and boys' soccer team in the fall, while the girls' soccer team took second place in the spring. For the first time in school history, the girls' cross country team qualified for the state finals and boys' basketball made it to the elite eight. In addition, girls' volleyball, girls' golf and girls' basketball each had their most successful and memorable seasons ever.

Over the summer, we will be finalizing plans for our 50th Anniversary celebration. Saint Viator High School first opened its doors in August 1961. We will begin our year-long celebration of this anniversary year in January 2011. Also, be sure to mark Saturday, April 9, 2011 on your calendar when we will host our annual Night of the Lion celebration at Navy Pier. We are encouraging all our alumni, past and current parents, and friends of Saint Viator to join in the celebration.

I pray that you have a safe and peaceful summer. I look forward to welcoming our students back in August after a much deserved break.

Sincerely,

Rev. Robert M. Egan, C.S.V.

Students Shine at Spring Arts Fest

The Saint Viator resource center transformed into an art gallery last May for the Spring Arts Festival, as parents, grandparents, siblings, faculty and students themselves perused selections of students' work.

They found a wide variety of pieces to take in, including large and small works done in 2-dimensional black and white, as well as color; photography, ceramics, sculpture and oil painting.

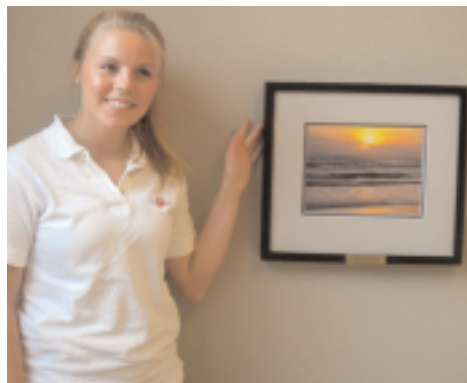

The visual arts portion of the Spring Arts Festival traditionally kicks off the afternoon, as guests see the entire body of students' work --- including band, dance, choral and improv comedy selections --- from their studies in the fine arts curriculum.

A pair of outside judges decided best in class of the six media, as well as best in show at the visual arts show. They included Suzanne Renner, an art instructor with Northwest Suburban High School District 214 and former Saint Viator art teacher; along with Chris Trausch, an art teacher at St. James Catholic School.

The Best in Show Award went to Soyoung Oh '12 for her oil painting, "Trapped and Restless," for her interpretation of all the cultural barriers she has had to overcome as an international student.

Fr. Egan also served as a judge, selecting a digital photo taken by Samantha Scanlon '12 as the 2010 President's Purchase Award.

Class award winners included: 2-D black and white: 1st, Kathryn Augustyn '11, 2nd and 3rd place to Louis Capozzoli '11. 2-D color: 1st, Danielle Zalusky '11, 2nd and 3rd to Kathryn Augustyn '11. Photography: 1st Lauren Falotico '12, 2nd to Jennifer Walesa '11, 3rd to Nicole Wasowicz '11. Ceramics: 1st to Ariana Kulinczenko '10, 2nd to Natalie Jaydos '12, 3rd to Mariusz Ulmaniec '11. Sculpture: 1st to Kathryn Augustyn '11, 2nd to Jessica Tanyko '11, 3rd to Louis Capozzoli '11. Oil painting: 1st to Martha Ryzner '10, 2nd to Soyoung Oh '10, 3rd to Erin O'Connell '11. Promising Artist Award: Alyssa Abay '13.

Band Awards

More than 80 members of the concert, symphonic and jazz bands --- and their parents --- met for the 15th annual banquet held this year at the Millrose Restaurant in South Barrington. Band Director Tom Seaman, who also celebrated his 15th year with the program, congratulated the students on a year of high achievements for the band.

He recounted their second place finish in their class at the State of the Art competition for band programs at Catholic high schools across the Chicagoland area. He also pointed to their first place finish in woodwinds, which he described as "a first in a number of years."

At the Jazz in the Meadows festival at Rolling Meadows High School, the band placed fourth overall in their class, which was a high mark for the band in recent years, and "overall gave one of the best performances that I can remember."

Seaman described this year's group of 18 seniors as "outstanding leaders" and a "big reason why we've been able to accomplish all that we have, all four years you've been here."

The seniors returned the sentiment by awarding Seaman and his wife, Kelly, with tickets to a performance by the Dave Brubeck Quartet, Nancy Wilson, and the All Star Jazz Band Quintet at Ravinia, along with dinner for two at its Park View Restaurant.

A highlight of the evening came when outstanding students were recognized in each band. Congratulations to the following nominees and winners: Concert Band: Most improved nominees: Jaehwang Park '12, Kyong Yoo '13, Christine Southall '12, Anthony Cataldo '12 and Michael Escarda '12. Spanish Students Step Outside AP Spanish students saw their classroom expand beyond the walls of Saint Viator last spring when they traveled to Chicago's historic Pilsen neighborhood.

Teachers Janet Tan and John Fuja accompanied the group of 12 students on their trip into the city. They were met by Alejandro Morales, a staff member of the Resurrection Project, which tries to help many of the newly transplanted residents from Mexico assimilate to life in the United States.

Its staff does everything from help them find housing and jobs, to teach them how to keep a checking account and manage their finances.

"We wanted a chance for the students to put the Spanish they had learned in the classroom to use," Tan said.

Morales served as a tour guide, and spoke entirely in Spanish. To their surprise, the students understood him.

He told the group of Pilsen's rich history and of its many improvements made to the area over the last decade. He also pointed out some of its popular landmarks, including its vibrant artwork seen on many of the building walls.

The works had been done by Hispanic artists and had been commissioned by Pilsen officials to portray meaningful images for the Mexican people. The most popular image that resonated with Saint Viator students, and Mexican residents in the area, was of Our Lady of Guadalupe.

Their trip included lunch at a traditional cantina that offered them albondigas (meatballs), arroz (Mexican-style rice), nopales rellenos, (stuffed cactus pears), pollo con mole (chicken in mole sauce), enchiladas and fresh fruit.

After lunch they stopped at a panadería (bakery) where the students bought dessert, before stopping at the dulcería (candy store), where they bought all sorts of Mexican candy.

"The students had a great time," Tans said. "I plan to go back next year in the fall with a new group of students."

Special Faculty Honors

At the end-of-the-year faculty luncheon, the Rev. Robert M. Egan, C.S.V. announced faculty and staff milestone years of service, as well as several awards for standout teachers.

Social Studies teacher Tom Nall was named a "Teacher of Distinction" by the Coca Cola Scholars Foundation for his role in inspiring his students to achieve great things. He was nominated by Janice Guzon '10, herself named a regional Coca Cola Scholar by the foundation and awarded a $10,000 scholarship. As part of her award, she was asked to nominate an inspiring teacher who made an impact on her high school career.

Scanlan Center Director Nancy Rosean won the school's first "Greatest Gift Award," given to the teacher who reflects God's love in extraordinary ways, by teaching students to love God and other people. Upon receiving the award, her colleagues gave her a standing ovation. A $500 monetary award will be donated to the tuition assistance fund in her name.

The afternoon --- and school year --- concluded in the traditional way, of awarding the Fr. Louis Querbes Award to the one faculty member who best exemplifies the spirit of the St. Viator community. Faculty and staff members vote on the award, and this year it went to the Rev. John Van Wiel, C.S.V. He too drew a standing ovation from his colleagues.

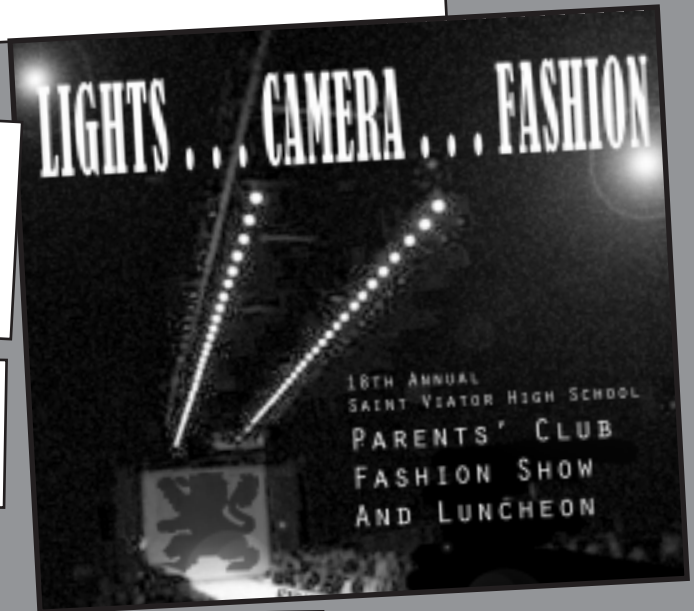

PARENTS' CLUB BULLETIN BOARD

All parents are invited to the Parents' Club kick-off meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, September 13, 2010, in the Resource Center (Library) on the first floor. Please note that Parents' Club will meet on the SECOND Monday of each month during the 2010-2011 school year. Check the Saint Viator calendar or Web site for details.

Vicariate Youth Leadership Awards

A Foundation of Service

By: Betsy Fons, campus ministry director

Seniors who typically work behind the scenes were honored in April by the Archdiocese of Chicago at the 12th annual Vicariate 1 Youth Leadership Awards Dinner, in their efforts to recognize and affirm outstanding youth leaders.

The Saint Viator students all were recognized for their work in peer ministry and their involvement in campus ministry projects.

They included: Sarah Balas, Alex Cutrone, Colleen Dahmer, Lauren Drolet, Alex Nowakowski, Richard Hutyra, Tim Ivers, Colleen Kenyon, Maggie Lakowske, Sarah Liedlich, Steven Patzke and Maura Wolfe.

“I believe it is so important to recognize the leadership development of teens within high school programs,” says Betsy Fons, campus ministry director and former youth ministry official with the Joliet Diocese. “It is through their participation in Campus Ministry that they experience personal growth in faith and a richer understanding of Catholic tradition.”

More Saint Viator students were recognized at the same dinner for their volunteer efforts at their respective parishes.

“Too often today, teenagers receive recognition only when they are involved in unhealthy or negative behaviors,” Fons adds. “We believe that teens deserve to be recognized for all the positive contributions they make. Many of these contributions occur right in our own parishes and high schools.”

The Class of 2010 is the first graduating class that participated fully in the new Christian service program requiring 25 hours completed during each of a student's four years at Saint Viator.

As part of the Christian service requirement, students are asked to write a 2-page reflection paper each year. Seniors were asked to write personal reflections about how their experience with service will help them fulfill the profile of a Saint Viator graduate.

If the content of these papers is any indication as to the effectiveness of the Christian service program, then it appears the school's investment in service has paid off. Here is a sampling of their thoughts:

“Living in the 21st century, there are so many technologies available for people to use to get information and make judgments,” writes Alexandra Dalton. “However, serving others allows us to break through those judgments because we are able to work with people directly.”

“I will continue to embrace and live out the profile of a Saint Viator High School graduate,” writes Rachel Nagengast, “because a Saint Viator 'lion' and service go hand in hand.”

“Fulfilling the service requirement helped me develop a sense of pride in what I was doing,” writes Eric Primdahl. “When people asked me why I would be at a service project I would tell them I was completing a service requirement. By my senior year, I would just tell them I am doing service with my friends from Saint Viator, leaving out the fact that it's required.”

“Representing your school is one thing, but when you attach the fact that you are completing service while representing your school,” he adds, “nothing else can top that.”

“I did enough service hours over four years to realize the true benefits of why they are required,” writes Michael Cervantes-Lara. “It's not a punishment, but rather it is a way to truly discover who you are and discover in many different ways how to become closer to God.”

Variety Show was a Smash!

Saint Viator's fourth annual Variety Show took place April 23 and drew more than 300 attendees. They got their money's worth, seeing 13 student acts, including some that featured students in bands, singing and playing guitars, as well as dancing and even performing magic.

While the variety show has become something of a tradition, it still showed it could evolve with the times, when audience members voted via an online text message system.

First place went to a senior choral members Hayley Nagengast and Katie Deger, accompanied by Jonathan Metzinger on piano, on the song, "What Is This Feeling?" Fans voted the band, "Stormfront" in second place, featuring freshmen James Pickering and Ryan Sevilla playing original music.

In third place, fans voted for a group of band students who have formed their own rock band. "Chris & the Bean Stalk" features juniors Tim Mack and Ryan Yueill and seniors Mike Bensen and Chris Banaszak, playing original music.

Viator Voice Draw National Attention

The staff of the Viator Voice wrapped up another successful year with their long awaited Senior Edition. Following with tradition, the 54 page final copy had students and their families reading all the news that was fit to print, namely seniors' wishes, their awards and college choices.

However, the newspaper staff had even more to celebrate. They recently were honored by two high school press associations, both in state and national newspaper contests.

The Voice staff received a Silver Certificate from the Northern Illinois School Press Association and a First Place award from the American Scholastic Press Association, which is a New York-based organization that reviews more than 2,000 student newspapers each year to come up with their top ranking list.

"This is especially impressive considering that students do not receive course credit for their work on the Viator Voice, as some student journalists do," says English teacher Chris Paoletti, who serves as moderator for the newspaper. "Our students are not being graded on their efforts, and they still produced superior work."

The following students also received special recognition from NISPA for individual efforts: Janice Guzon '10-Blue Ribbon, Editorial Writing, Danielle Di Silvestro '11-Blue Ribbon, Advertisement Design, Michael Benson '10-Honorable Mention, Review Writing, Brooke Bonk '10-Honorable Mention, Opinion/Column Writing, Clare Dussman '10-Honorable Mention, Photography, Martha Ryzner '10-Honorable Mention, Artwork.

Physics Moves Beyond Classroom

The end of the year was a busy one for Saint Viator science students. The honors and regular physics classes went to Great America, for a different spin on a field trip: they studied the physics of roller coasters. A total of 165 physics students took data and measurements at the park, such as calculating the height of the attraction, how fast they were going and the energy at various points on the ride. Back in their physics lab the next day, they processed their data using principles that they had learned during the year.

“While riding roller coasters is always fun, physics students now can explain the sensations they are experiencing on these rides,” says physics teacher Liz Englbrecht. “Once you know physics, it makes a trip to the amusement park a completely different experience.”

Another end-of-the-year assignment for physics students was to make mousetrap cars as an alternative assessment to their energy unit. Their assignment was to build a car powered with a standard mousetrap that would go exactly 10 meters.

On race day, awards were given for the best design and best looking car. Caitlin Poltzer '11 and Marissa Mueller '11 won in both categories, but all the students enjoyed the unit.

“Mouse trap cars are a great experiment for beginner to experienced physics students,” says Carlyn Clevenger '11. “It allows for creativity while teaching the basics of physics.”

In April, teachers Jan Grana and Patti Schroeder accompanied juniors Christine McKee, Dana Franceschini, and Madeline Wimberly to attend the Conference on Careers in Search of Women at the Argonne National Laboratory.

They spent the day touring the facilities and meeting in small panel groups with noted women scientists in the science, math and engineering fields.

“They were able to explore career options and speak with scientists who could tell them about the opportunities and unique circumstances of women pursuing careers in these exciting and demanding disciplines,” Grana says.

Also last spring, several students had an opportunity to show “physics in action.” They submitted an 8” x 10” photo and an essay of up to 250 words explaining the physics shown in their photo. The top eight photos were selected to be entered into the American Association of Physics Teachers annual photo contest. These photos were taken by: Angelica Dickey '11, Danielle Di Silvestro '11, Katherine Maul '11, Natasha Remiasz '11, Nicole Wasowicz '11, Andrew White '11 and Kelli Wosick '11.

Englbrecht continues to study physics herself. Last summer she studied at Northwestern University under Prof. John Ketterson in an optics group studying diffraction and its role in light interference. As part of her research, she developed a curriculum unit where students could create diffraction gratings to separate light, such as those seen in opals.

In the spring, Englbrecht was asked to present her research from last summer and how the unit she developed worked in the classroom, at the National Science Teacher Association's national convention in Philadelphia. This summer she has returned to work at Northwestern, for further study on photonic crystals with the Ketterson group.
